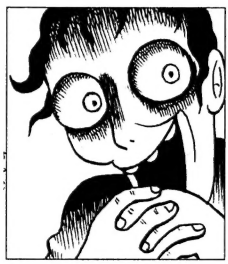
Chapter 1 / The End

[SPECIAL FEATURE] MY FEAR CHALLENGE

BY HIDESHI HINO



I have an absolute fear of heights.When I was a child, we lived in a two-story house. My father, who was a carpenter, would sometimes call me up to the roof. "Hey, you're my eldest son, so you'd better start learning. From now on, you'll be climbing up here too!" He'd put me to work helping out on the roof. Our workday began early in the morning. By 8 o'clock, we'd already be on site. At 10, there was a tea break. Then lunch at 12. At 3 in the afternoon, another tea break. At 5, the day was done.

That's how construction work was, rain or shine, summer or winter. Of course, on rainy days, work was canceled. Looking back now, it really was easy money. But still, I was terrified. I hated climbing ladders and working on the roof. I was so afraid of falling. Even now, I can't go up onto roofs. I realized I wasn't going to follow in my father's footsteps after all. And that's how I found my "fear." I still draw about it today in my horror manga.

VOICE

- "The story I enjoyed the most was Hideshi Hino's Bone-Haired Boy. All of his works have such depth, and I found them incredibly entertaining. I also like Tonō-sensei's stories. Interestingly, when my mother saw Hino-sensei's art, she became nostalgic and was delighted to see it again."— A.Y.

- "The variety of stories was wonderful — I had such a great time reading. Personally, I was struck by thought-provoking works like Real Tears. They really made me reflect, and I even felt like I learned something. I'm excited for more issues."— E.M.

- "I wanted issues 1 and 2 as well, but couldn't get them — they were already sold out at the bookstore. Finally, I managed to grab issue 3, and I'm thrilled. Though... the scene with the guts spilling everywhere... well, some people like that sort of thing, so I can't really complain. Maybe it even works as a diet aid! In any case, I was completely satisfied with every story, and I'm eager for more. I can't wait for issue 4."— Demian

- "Each story is fairly short, so I wish the volume were a little thicker. And honestly, the price is a bit steep... but I'll still be buying issue 4!"— Wāta-kun

- "So many fascinating stories — I loved it."— Yabuki

- "There was a lot of really fun stuff packed in!" — Rocky-chan

- "First time reader, but I really enjoyed it! I 'll definitely be picking up issue 4."— Yuki
